ATLANTA – Paces Properties invites all to join the community in joyful measure for the 2017 annual Vinings Jubilee Christmas Tree Lighting, when the area at Tower Stage fills with families, friends and even snow, marking the start of the holiday season. Yuletide traditions return this year including local music, dance performances, and plenty of family fun and activities.

Now, of course The Vinings Jubilee Christmas Tree Lighting wouldn't be complete without a visit from Santa! Two Santa Express Trains will be in session all evening long while the big man himself will be available for family photos, gift requests and holiday wishes. This year's activities include balloon twisting, ornament making, and invocation and cookie making with Vinings United Methodist Church, as well as fan favorite, face painting, where guests will be transformed into marvelous winter wonderland characters. In addition, Vinings Jubilee eateries including SOHO, Paces & Vine, Guaco Joes, Mellow Mushroom, and Stockyard Burgers, and others will be doling out delicious snacks, beverages, and goodies.

Nothing makes the holiday season better and brighter than live music and entertainment from local area schools and studios. Whitefield Academy Jazz Band, Campbell Middle School Chorus, The Music Studio at Vinings, and Teasley Elementary School Chorus will gift attendees this year with holiday musical numbers and choral performances while The Studio Atlanta Dance is back for yet another spectacular dance performance alongside Lotus Performing Arts Studio.

"We are overjoyed at the response received from those attending the Vinings Jubilee Christmas Tree Lighting," said David Cochran, CEO of Paces Properties. "Families come from all over metro-Atlanta to share in this community tradition, we're delighted to have the opportunity to continue hosting such a meaningful event year-after-year."
